

Here's to Phil — and Philly

Yes, Tom Brady is back in the Super Bowl.

But Super Bowl weekend begins today, on Groundhog Day, when Punxsutawney Phil, an Eagles fan, will be escorted from his burrow to make his ruling on whether we get an early spring or a longer winter. This is important news up where Tom and Phil live, but also here in Hollywood, where the 14th annual Groundhog Day swim brings intrepid locals to Hollywood Beach this morning.

The gathering is 6:30-8 a.m. at Ocean Alley Restaurant and Beach Bar on the Hollywood Beach Broadwalk, with the swim at 7:30 a.m. The morning also will include live coverage of Phil's imperious appearance in Punxsutawney, Pa.

For a $12 donation, those taking part in the swim will get breakfast and a coveted Groundhog Day swim T-shirt. The shirts are available to nonswimmers at an additional $12, while they last. Proceeds support the Hollywood Beach Lifeguard Competition Team's travel expenses for the national meet in Virginia Beach. For more information, email hlwdcahoot@aol.com.

Later that evening, ArtsPark Movie Night returns to downtown Hollywood's Young Circle with an 8 p.m. screening of Bill Murray's existential romantic comedy "Groundhog Day," which premiered 25 years ago this month. Bring a beach chair and a blanket — the Weather Channel says the temperatures may dip below 72. Take that, Phil! For more information, visit FloridasHollywood.org.
